Subject: Ojibwe request to EPA under 404(c)

Hi Peter,

Thanks for your help on the phone a moment ago. Attached is the letter sent by the Ojibwe tribes to the EPA asking the agency to use its authority under Section 404(C) of the Clean Water Act to stop mine permitting activities in northern Wisconsin. I did find a fact sheet about 404(C) "veto" authority on the EPA website, but I want to make sure I understand it fully. Specifically, I see that the formal process starts when the EPA Regional Administrator makes the determination to issue a public notice of a Proposed Determination to withdraw, prohibit, deny, or restrict the specification of a defined area for discharge of dredged or fill material. I'm interested in learning how the Regional Administrator makes that determination, what the timeline for that is, and what factors go into making that determination. I'd also like someone to walk me through the "Veto" process if that determination is made.

Moreover, not in their letter, but in anecdotal conversations, Ojibwe leaders have referenced the Pebble Mine in Alaska as a template for the EPA using 404(C) to stop a project. If I could talk to someone with knowledge of that issue, I'd appreciate it.

Ideally, I'd love to do a video Skype or phone interview. My deadline is 3pm today. Please be in touch via email or the phone number below. Thank you for your help!

Best,

Ben

Dear Tribal Leaders:

I am writing to invite you to meet with U.S. EPA Regional Administrator Susan Hedman on August 21, 2014. This continues our ongoing series of tribal leaders meetings, and will be held at the Grand Traverse Resort from 1:00 – 3:00 pm, following the Regional Tribal Operations Committee meeting. Past tribal leaders meetings have been well attended with good open discussions, and we hope you can participate.

In response to your requests, I am developing an agenda based on your input: Please send me your suggested discussion topics as soon as possible, and let me know if you plan on attending (rsvp). Once I have topics from you and your staff, I will distribute an agenda in advance of the meeting.

Regional Administrator Hedman hopes you will be able to join her and is looking forward to meeting with you in Michigan.

Please contact me if you have questions, comments or need additional information.

thanks.....Darrel
